

Floating Bridge and Landings Commissioning

October 30, 2015

Commissioning: Commissioning is the process of verifying that all systems in new construction are fully functional and meet the requirements of the owner. This is a quality assurance focused process required for all complex modern construction projects, including the new SR 520 floating bridge and the bridge's maintenance facility. This graphic illustrates outstanding items needed in order to commission the new floating bridge and open it to traffic, currently planned for spring 2016.

Bridge electrical progress

Description: Each bridge construction element icon is placed in the month and year of its estimated completion. The outer circle around each icon indicates the percentage of progress on that element.

Note: Not to scale, for illustrative purposes only, percents complete are estimates.
